

Things you should know - declared dangerous dogs

The Domestic Animals Act 1994

empowers councils to declare a dog to be 'dangerous' if: the dog has caused serious injury or death to a person or animal; if the dog is a menacing dog and its owner has received at least 2 infringement notices for failing to comply with restraint requirements; if the dog has been declared dangerous under corresponding legislation in another State/Territory; or for any other reason prescribed.

Serious injury to a person or animal is an injury requiring medical or veterinary attention in the nature of a broken bone, a laceration, the total or partial loss of sensation or function in a part of the body, or an injury requiring cosmetic surgery.

Declared dangerous dogs

A dangerous dog declaration has effect throughout Victoria, and it cannot be revoked, amended or otherwise altered.

A dog that is kept for the purpose of guarding non-residential premises, or a dog that has been trained to attack or bite any person or any thing when attached to or worn by a person, is automatically a dangerous dog under the Domestic Animals Act 1994.

This information does not apply to guard dogs on non-residential premises – for specific information on these dogs refer to the brochure "Things you should know about guard dogs on non-residential premises".

Penalties for failing to comply with dangerous dog laws

Owners of:

- dangerous dogs declared due to attack;
- attack trained dogs
- guard dogs
- declared menacing dogs
- restricted breed dogs (both registered and unregistered)

can be jailed for up to 10 years if their dog kills someone, or for up to 5 years if their dog endangers someone's life, under the Crimes Act 1958.

Penalties for failing to comply with the keeping requirements for a dangerous dog in relation to:

- notification of where the dog is housed
 - enclosure requirements, and
 - requirements for wearing a collar and being kept on a lead and muzzled when off their property
 - notifying prospective buyer in writing that the dog is a dangerous dog
- can be imposed on owners.

Where the owner of a dog is under the age of 18 years, the parent or guardian of that owner will be deemed the legal owner of the dog and subject to any penalties/prosecutions.

Requirements for keeping declared dangerous dogs

Owners of dangerous dogs have imposed on them a series of obligations to make sure that members of the public are not attacked by such a dog. There are penalties for non-compliance. This document provides an overview of the requirements relating to dangerous dog provisions in the Act and the prescribed requirements in the Domestic Animals Regulations 2015.

Microchip identification

The owner of the dog must ensure that the animal is implanted with an ISO microchip in accordance with the Regulations (unless already microchipped prior to 20 May 2003).

This microchip identification number, along with other information as specified in the Regulations, must be supplied to the council with which the dog is registered within 7 days of the dog being microchipped.

Desexing

It is a requirement to desex all dangerous dogs that have been declared due to attack. Newly declared dogs (due to attack) must be immediately desexed unless the owner obtains a certificate from a veterinarian stating the dog cannot be desexed for health reasons.

Collar

Whilst a microchip is a permanent form of identification it is not visible. Dangerous dogs must also wear a prescribed collar at all times.

The collar is specially designed to be visible from a distance and is reflective at night. This means that at all times, whether on the owner's property or not, a dangerous dog can be recognised from a distance, warning a person of the potential danger of the dog.

Collars for dangerous dogs must:

- consist of red stripes alternately spaced with yellow stripes each being of a width of not less than 20 mm and not more than 30 mm and set diagonal to the rim of the collar
- have at least one of the two colours able to reflect light in the dark
- be made of durable materials
- be able to be securely fastened
- have the facility to attach a leash
- have a minimum width of:
 - 25 mm for a dog weighing not more than 40 kgs; or
 - 50 mm for a dog weighing more than 40 kg.

Signs

It is important for a person with a valid reason to enter the premises (e.g. emergency services personnel) to know a dangerous dog is present. The owner of a dangerous dog must display prescribed warning signs at all entrances to the premises where the dog is kept warning people that a dangerous dog is kept on the premises.

This warning sign must:

- be square with sides of at least 40 cm
- be made of durable metal
- have at least one colour that is reflective
- comply with the Domestic Animals Regulations 2015.

For details of suppliers of dangerous dog warning signs, contact your local council, or phone the DJPR Customer Service Centre on 136 186.

Housing

When indoors or in an outdoor enclosure, the dog must be housed in such a way that it cannot escape, and that prevents it from injuring visitors to the premises. The dwelling and enclosure must both be constructed in such a manner that a person cannot have access to them without the assistance of an occupier of the premises who is of or over 18 years of age. The owner must also ensure there is an outdoor enclosure that must:

- be fully enclosed
- have a weatherproof sleeping area
- have a minimum floor area of ten square metres per dangerous dog
- have a minimum height of 1.8 metres
- have a minimum width of 1.8 metres
- contain walls, a floor, a drain, a roof and a gate which comply with the detail below.

The walls of the enclosure must be fixed to the floor and constructed to be no more than 50 mm from the floor.

The walls, roof and gate of the enclosure must be constructed of:

- brick, timber, iron or similar solid materials
- chain mesh manufactured from 3.15 mm wire to form a uniform 50 mm mesh or weldmesh manufactured from 4 mm wire with a maximum mesh spacing of 50 mm.

A combination of the above may be acceptable.

The mesh size and construction detail is specified so that the enclosure will be escape proof and so that people, particularly small children, cannot fit body parts such as hands into the enclosure with the dog.

The floor of the enclosure must be constructed of concrete and be graded to a drain for the removal of effluent.

The gate on the enclosure must contain a lock and it is a requirement that the enclosure is kept securely locked when the dog is in the pen.

Restraint

A dangerous dog must be muzzled and on a lead whilst it is outside the owner's dwelling and the dog's enclosure.

Dangerous dogs found at large

If a dog that has previously been declared as a dangerous dog (due to attack) is found wandering at large, it can be seized and impounded, and euthanased after 24 hours. Owners must contact the council within 24 hours of impoundment if they wish to prove there were mitigating circumstances for the dog being at large (if this can be proven, the owner may be able to reclaim the dog).

Notification

The owner of a dangerous dog must notify the council that registered the dog within 24 hours if:

- the dog is missing
- the ownership of the dog changes
- the owner's address changes or the place where the dog is kept changes.

If there is a change in the municipality where a dangerous, menacing or restricted breed dog is kept, owners must inform both the Council of the municipal district in which the dog was previously kept and the Council of the municipal district in which the dog is being kept within 24 hours of the change.

Things you should know - declared dangerous dogs

This keeps the Council informed of the location of dangerous dogs at all times. The Council will inspect the premises to ensure the Regulations are being adhered to. A person must not sell, transfer or give a dangerous dog to another person, without first advising them in writing that the dog is a dangerous dog.

You may wish to use a pre prepared template which you can request from your Local Council or email pet.welfare@ecodev.vic.gov.au

Other information

Councils have the power to charge higher registration fees for dangerous dogs that have been declared due to attack, than the standard maximum pet registration fees.

The Domestic Animals Regulations 2015 provide for and ensure a state-wide standard relating to the management of dangerous dogs. The uniform identification of dangerous dogs, and the identification of premises where they live are important for easy identification of these dogs.

It is also vital for effective state-wide education programs, directed particularly at children.
